879	Fascinating First World War album, entitled 'Collections & Recollections of Farnborough R.F.C. 1915' - the album formerly the property of Major (later Lieutenant Colonel) Richard G. T. Bright Rifle Brigade - consists of a wonderful archive of letters and drawings sent to The Royal Flying Corps in Farnborough between November 1914 and February 1915 from soldiers and civilians wishing to join the R.F.C., as well as cunning inventions for new weapons - notable ideas discussed include bombs filled with cayenne pepper to 'cause a momentary lull in firing' and fixing 'sharp knives' beneath the wheels of aircraft in order to puncture Zeppelin's gas tanks - a truly wonderful archive from the dawn of military aviation. N.B. Lt. Col. R. G. T. Bright in the Rifle Brigade was part of Macdonald's expedition from Uganda to Abyssinia in 1898 and again joined the British Section of the Uganda-Congo Boundary Commission in the Western Frontier districts of the Uganda Protectorate in 1907 and 1908. He was awarded the CMG and the Star of Zanzibar. His health was never very good after his time in Africa and so he was given a desk job during the First World War - hence the collection of letters and inventions in his album. In 2005 an American wrote a book using his diaries, called Expedition from Uganda to Abyssinia 1898; The Diary of Lt. R. G. T. Bright, by Frederic A. Sharf	£500 - £700
